Statement of the Special Video Conference of the ICAPP Youth Wing

1. We, the representatives of 33 political parties from 24 Countries, gathered virtually for the Special Video Conference of the ICAPP Youth Wing. The meeting was co-hosted by the ICAPP Youth Wing and the ICAPP Secretariat and held on 3 February 2021. The meeting was organized over an online platform due to physical constraints as a result of COVID-19. The main theme of the conference was "Education and Social Protection Mechanisms for Youth During and After COVID-19." The conference was structured into two sessions: the first session focused on the topic of enabling continuity in learning for youth, and the second session on expanding social protection mechanisms for young people who have lost their jobs or experienced income reductions.

2. We recalled takeaways from our five previous meetings of the ICAPP Youth Wing in Kuala Lumpur (2012), Baku (2013), Colombo (2014), Moscow (2018), and Baku (2019), which reiterated the ICAPP's commitment to youth development in Asia and beyond. We revisited key points in the 2019 "Baku Statement for the 5th Meeting of the ICAPP Youth Wing," which called upon political parties and governments to increase international cooperation to promote the participation of youth in socio-economic activities, to provide structural guidelines for vocational training and employment of youth, and to protect youth rights and equal opportunities.

3. We acknowledged the difficult situation youth are facing in the area of education due to COVID-19. In particular, we took note of how one in eight young people (13%) who were studying or combining work and study before the pandemic were left without access to any form of education. We recognized that the situation is especially acute in low-income countries, where many do not have access to remote learning tools and the internet. We noted that young people's nutrition and well-being were also being affected as schools are often a source of free meals and health needs.

4. We acknowledged the difficult situation youth are facing in the area of employment due to COVID-19. In particular, we took note of how one in six young people (17%) who were employed before the pandemic became unemployed and two out of five young people (42%) saw reductions in their incomes. We further recognized that young people are more likely to be the subject of precarious job contracts and working arrangements and therefore, more likely to lack adequate social protection than others.

5. In response to the current challenges faced by youth, we underlined the importance of raising awareness and promoting appropriate policy responses that incorporate the whole-of-society and intergenerational approaches to prevent a long-lasting and damaging impact on youth, taking into account the significant disruptions across education and employment as a result of COVID-19. In the sphere of education, we emphasized the responsibility of governments, political parties, private sector and all other stakeholders in enabling continuity in learning. We encouraged ICAPP members to join the international community in taking actions to expand internet access, digital infrastructure and connectivity as well as to arrange remote learning solutions through high-tech, low-tech and no-tech solutions depending on young people's access to digital connectivity. We also highlighted the importance of caring for young people of low-income backgrounds that rely on schools to meet their nutrition and health needs.

6. In the sphere of employment, we called upon governments and political parties to devise social protection measures such as unemployment support and access to healthcare that can reach young people. We also drew attention to measures that could improve the working conditions of young people, especially those engaged in precarious work in the informal economy.

7. We expressed our strong support for the United Nations Inter-Agency Network on Youth Development's (UN IANYD) 2020 "Statement on COVID-19 & Youth," which endorsed partnering with young people, recognizing young people's own actions and their potential to advance the fight against the pandemic; understanding the specific impacts the pandemic will have on young people; and ensuring COVID-19 related responses will uphold young people's human rights and incorporate their needs.

8. We emphasized concerted action to not only develop and examine youth policies, but also recognize the important role young people can play in sustainable development efforts, including climate change, unemployment, poverty, gender equality, conflict and migration. We concurred with the UN Secretary-General's 2017 report on youth development, which asserted that the "pledges made in the 2030 Agenda to leave no one behind and to reach the furthest behind first, as well as its affirmation to be people-centred, ensure that youth are included in all aspects of the Agenda." As such, we called upon governments and political parties to design and implement policy frameworks that can improve the situation of young people at both the national and international levels. Also, we agreed to share updates on the progress made on these policy measures at the upcoming 6th Youth Wing Meeting, which will be held in Mongolia later this year.

9. We considered it critical to establish active partnerships among all stakeholders to implement effective policy measures for young people who are affected by COVID-19. In this regard, we highly appreciated the participation of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) and the International Labour Organization (ILO) in the conference, and the insights and expertise shared by their representatives.

10. We emphasized a strong and urgent need for international partnership and solidarity among the ICAPP members in the fight against COVID-19. We called on responsible governments and political parties to share best practices, experiences, and low-cost educational tools and methods with the ICAPP global family to help weather the global challenges caused by COVID-19; and thereby, advance the spirit of building a community and improve the shared future of humanity through the assurance of youth education, health security, adequate employment opportunities, and enhanced quality of life.

11. We expressed our appreciation to the ICAPP Youth Wing and the ICAPP Secretariat for the successful organization of the event. We also shared our excitement and anticipation for the next meeting of the ICAPP Youth Wing, which will be hosted by the Mongolian People's Party in the latter half of this year.

Adopted on 3 February 2021

Appendix III-3.

Statement of the Special Video Conference of the ICAPP Women's Wing

1. We, the representatives of 32 political parties from 22 countries, gathered virtually for the Special Video Conference of the ICAPP Women's Wing. The meeting was co-hosted by the ICAPP Women's Wing and the ICAPP Secretariat and held on 24 February 2021. The meeting was organized over an online platform due to physical constraints as a result of COVID-19. The main theme of the conference was "Women's Empowerment During and After COVID-19." The conference was structured into two sessions. The first session addressed the topic of economic insecurity, in particular, how to mitigate the negative and disproportionate economic impacts of COVID-19 on women. The second session dealt with gender-based violence with a focus on preventing and redressing domestic violence against women.

2. We recalled takeaways from our five previous meetings of the ICAPP Women's Wing in Baku (2013), Colombo (2014), Baku (2015), Kuala Lumpur (2016), Moscow (2018), and Baku (2019), which underlined the importance of promoting gender equality in achieving sustainable and inclusive societies. We revisited the 2019 "Baku Statement for the 6th Meeting of the ICAPP Women's Wing," which emphasized the importance of creating an inclusive environment and addressing the needs of the female population.

3. We acknowledged the economic challenges faced by women due to COVID-19. As stated in the UN Women report, "From Insights to Action: Gender Equality in the Wake of COVID-19," 435 million women and girls, including an increase of 47 million as a result of COVID-19, are estimated to live in poverty, or less than $1.90 a day. We noted the higher vulnerability of the female labor force under current circumstances as is evident from the report's statistics that 50 percent of women have experienced a reduction in working time compared to 35 percent of men.

4. We acknowledged the rise in domestic violence since the inception of the pandemic, noting that in some countries, reports of violence against women have surged by as much as 25 percent. We further recognized the prevailing environment, in which restrictions of movement, transition of domestic violence shelters into health centers, the lack of judicial, police and health support services, and an inability to seek help have led victims of domestic violence to become isolated.

5. We called upon members to adopt gender-responsive policies and programs that can ensure the economic stability of women by means of equal opportunities to access education, financial assistance, and social protection mechanisms. We urged for state-led motions to combat harmful stereotypes around gender roles to improve social integration. Meanwhile, we underlined the necessity to establish support measures that can ease women's increasing burdens of domestic and unpaid care work during the pandemic.

6. We emphasized the importance of continuation in funding and operation of domestic violence shelters and services supporting women against gender-based violence. Also, we called upon governments and political parties to actively consider incorporating the designation of such resources as essential services. Furthermore, in light of the recent increase in gender-based domestic violence, we stressed the need to revise and enhance existing systems of reporting domestic violence and separating victims from abusers.

7. We expressed our strong support for the United Nations 1995 Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action, calling for all government policies and programs to reflect gender perspectives. In line with the objectives in the declaration, we reaffirmed our commitment to ensure women's economic empowerment by securing full and equal access to the labor market, a safe work environment without discrimination or abuse, and equal pay for work of equal value. We also endorsed the declaration's call for gender-sensitive policies and programs that can address domestic violence at a societal level rather than as a private matter. We concurred with the declaration's appeal to fill gaps in gender-disaggregated data and statistics, which can improve monitoring of violence, and to promote the integration of mental health services into primary health-care systems, so that victims of domestic violence can be better assisted.

8. We pledged to continue the strong international partnership and collaboration among ICAPP Members to share best practices, experiences, and insights from overcoming obstacles to gender equality. We called on responsible governments and political parties of ICAPP member countries to promptly address the current threats faced by women and girls in the interest of creating a safe and secure environment for all members of the community. We agreed to share updates on the progress made on these policy measures at the upcoming 7th Women's Wing Meeting, which will be held in Mongolia later this year.

9. We expressed our profound gratitude to the representatives of United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN Women) and the United Nations Economic, and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (UNESCAP) for participating in the conference to share their invaluable insights and expertise. We also showed our appreciation to the Permanent Conference of Political Parties of Latin America and the Caribbean (COPPPAL) for participating in the conference and sharing their knowledge and actions in light of their contributions to women's empowerment in Latin America and the Caribbean. We agreed to strengthen our respective partnerships with multilateral organizations to ensure standards for gender equality are effectively designed and implemented and to promote accountability through sharing regular updates on system-wide progress.

10. We expressed our appreciation to the ICAPP Women's Wing and the ICAPP Secretariat for the successful organization of the conference. We also shared our excitement and anticipation for the next meeting of the ICAPP Women's Wing, which will be hosted by the Mongolian People's Party in the later half of this year.

Adopted on 24 February 2021.

PHNOM PENH DECLARATION

CULTURAL COOPERATION AND INNOVATION FOR SHARED PROSPERITY DURING COVID-19 AND BEYOND

We, the members of the International Conference of Asian Political Parties (ICAPP), convened the 2nd ACC Meeting on 19 March 2021 via video conferencing. The meeting was co-hosted by the ICAPP and ACC Secretariats. We recalled the spirit of the Siem Reap Declaration for Culture of Peace, Sustainable Development, Human Connectivity, and Innovation, which was adopted unanimously at the launch of the ACC on 15 January 2019.

We highly appreciate the visionary leadership of Samdech Techo Hun Sen, Honorary Founding Chairman of the ACC; Hon. Muhammad Jusuf Kalla, Former Vice President of the Republic of Indonesia; Hon. Khadga Prasad Sharma Oli, Prime Minister of the Republic of Nepal; Hon. Jose de Venecia Jr., Founder of the ICAPP and Co-Chairman of the ICAPP Standing Committee; Hon. Chung Eui-yong, Co-Chairman of the ICAPP Standing Committee and Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Korea, and other prominent political leaders from Asia for their tireless efforts and commitments to the ACC.

We acknowledge and applaud the significant contributions of the Bureau Members of ICAPP and ACC in leading and facilitating the important works of the ACC. We also express our appreciation to the Asian Development Bank, the Civil Society Alliance Forum, the Asian Vision Institute and all other stakeholders for their support and partnership to deliver on ACC projects. Moreover, we appreciate the keynote speakers from UNESCO, UNOPS, and the Asian Vision Institute for sharing their insights at today's meeting.
We reiterate our commitment to upholding the people's rights and dignity and placing people's interests at the front and centre of national development and international cooperation. In light of the post-COVID-19 recovery, we stress the importance of promoting culture-based development and culture-innovation nexus.

We reiterate our determination, as was expressed in the 2019 Siem Reap Declaration, to uphold the purposes and principles of the United Nations Charter, the UNESCO Constitution, the Charter of ICAPP, the Cooperation Agreement between UNESCO and ICAPP, and the spirit of international cooperation based on the principles of mutual respect, mutual understanding and mutual interest (3M4PEACE) in order to achieve peaceful coexistence, equal sovereignty, non-interference in internal affairs, advancement of technology and innovation, constructive dialogue and economic prosperity.

We pledge to further advance our joint efforts and collaboration in promoting unity within the context of diversity, interfaith and religious harmony, as well as advancing inclusive social progress through socialising and promoting cooperative norms, cultural identity, and the values of humanity.

To realise the goals of achieving peaceful, sustainable, inclusive and resilient societies in Asia and to pursue collectively cultural cooperation and innovation for shared prosperity during COVID-19 and beyond, we thereby declare:

Global Cooperation

1. We commit to mobilising our strengths and resources to leverage our cultural richness and diversity to rebuild our economies more robustly and resiliently following the COVID-19 pandemic.

2. We encourage multi-stakeholder dialogues and partnerships to foster creativity and innovation in culture and creative industries so as to create job opportunities for local people and to promote their communities and neighbourhoods.

3. We underscore the importance of international cooperation and partnership under both bilateral and multilateral frameworks in promoting culture-based development, culture-innovation nexus, and people-centred development.

4. We emphasise a whole-of-society approach in responding to societal needs and supporting social adaptation and resilience during times of crises such as social and technological disruptions and restriction on people's mobility caused by the pandemic.

Innovation, Technology, and Creative Industries for Shared Prosperity

5. We acknowledge the need to promote more investments in culture-driven innovation and development. We encourage international collaboration to advance innovation in culture and in the creative industries for shared prosperity.

6. We stress the need for public-private-people partnerships in developing culture and creative industries so as to connect cultures and civilisations, especially to seize the opportunities stemming from the Fourth Industrial Revolution.

7. We recommend active participation of all actors in cultural preservation and development by way of their investments in cultural heritage will generate stronger bonds of friendship, relationship, and connectivity between and among cultures and civilisations.

8. We call upon all political parties, governments, public and private sectors and civil society organisations to promote research and innovation in culture and in the creative industries, so as to establish standards and practices that facilitate and enable social inclusion and inclusive growth.

9. We recognise the urgency of integrating and diffusing technologies in arts and cultures so as to uplift people's livelihoods through cultural and social innovations during COVID-19 and beyond.

Practical Cooperation

10. We encourage the mobilisation of financial resources in the form of trust funds or sustainable development funds through the support of international organizations, private foundations, international development agencies as well as bilateral and multilateral schemes for cultural projects that respond to current and future needs of societies.

11. We foster cooperation in holding public events of cultural significance via virtual or physical platforms, with the emphasis on cultural initiatives including the Cultural Marathon, the Belt and Road Initiative, the UNESCO Silk Roads Programme, and other cultural networks and projects among member countries to promote lasting peace, harmony, and international cooperation.

12. We express our appreciation to the ICAPP and ACC Secretariats for the successful organization of the 2nd ACC Meeting. We also encourage the ACC to work closely with the think tanks, international organisations, civil society organisations, and private corporations to carry out the aforementioned commitments and explore innovative programmes such as the TECHO 100 Village Project to achieve sustainable growth, inclusive development, and shared prosperity for humanity.

Adopted on 19 March 2021.

Phnom Penh, 19 March 2021

Taking this opportunity, I wish to thank all delegates for attending the Second Meeting of the Asian Cultural Council (ACC). The theme, Harnessing Culture and Innovation for Shared Prosperity During COVID-19 and Beyond, is very topical and significant.

Two years ago, the ACC was founded and launched in Siem Reap, Cambodia, with the aim to promote the linkages between culture and peace, sustainable development, human connectivity, and innovation. Our political commitment is clear: we work together to advance international dialogue and cooperation on culture-driven development and innovation to realize the Sustainable Development Goals.

Connecting people, connecting knowledge, and connecting actions are the key strategic interventions to bring about concrete results to the people. In this connection, people-centric development cooperation is our instrumental approach. We share a common purpose to support the ACC in becoming an essential institution in Asia in promoting peaceful, inclusive, sustainable, and resilient societies.

The Covid-19 pandemic is wreaking global havoc. Culture and creative industries (CCI) in particular have been hit hard due to lockdowns or restrictions on people mobility and gathering. The combat against the pandemic requires international solidarity and partnership. No country or society is safe unless we are all safe.

As we are forced to adapt to a new normal, it is imperative for us to be more innovative and visionary in transforming the crisis into an opportunity for reforms and progress. In this regard, investing in culture-based development and promoting innovation based on our rich cultural resources are some of our main policy options. For Cambodia, cultural tourism and culture-based innovation industry are our strength.

Today I am excited to witness the remarkable progress we have made in promoting the spirit of international cooperation based on the principles of mutual respect, mutual understanding and mutual interest (3M4PEACE) in order to achieve peaceful coexistence, equal sovereignty, non-interference in internal affairs, the advancement of technology and innovation, constructive dialogue and economic prosperity.

Finally, I would like to thank the ICAPP Secretariat together with UNESCO and the Asian Vision Institute for offering unwavering support to the Asian Cultural Council to realize its vision and mission. Together, we can walk far. Together, we can realize our potentials.

I wish all delegates longevity, nobility, health and strength.

The 2nd Meeting of the Asian Cultural Council
On the Theme:
"Harnessing Culture and Innovation for Shared Prosperity During Covid-19 and Beyond"
via Video Conference, 19 March 2021

Congratulations to the Asian Cultural Council (ACC) and the International Conference of Asian Political Parties (ICAPP) for the achievements made in the past two years. Although many activities have been disrupted by the Covid-19 pandemic, the ACC has managed to sustain some of its core activities, such as organizing this second meeting and implementing the TECHO 100 Villages project.

I believe that one of the critical factors to revive our economy and society in the post-Covid-19 era is to promote culture-based development, referring to the optimization of cultural resources in socio-economic development and poverty reduction. The key question here is how we can make culture a driver and enabler of sustainable and inclusive socio-economic recovery.

Cultural heritage, cultural and creative industries, sustainable cultural tourism, and cultural infrastructure development can serve as strategic tools for revenue generation in Asia, which is rich in cultural heritage. Culture is, therefore, a critical resource for us to build back more robust from the Covid-19 pandemic.

I wish the Second Meeting of the Asian Cultural Council a great success! I wish all participants good health and success in their endeavours.

MESSAGE

Dear Friends and Distinguished Delegates,

I would like to extend warm greetings from Nepal for the success of the 2nd meeting of the Asian Cultural Council (ACC). I am delighted to see that despite the constraints posed by the COVID-19, the momentum of ACC continues. I congratulate the ACC and the International Conference of Asian Political Parties (ICAPP) for hosting the 2nd meeting of ACC and wish for its success.

The COVID-19 has caused unprecedented impact in the way we live, work, interact and communicate. This has come for us as an unavoidable reality with which we have to cope and move on. The pandemic has caused enormous disruption in our economies and the way we do our business. In order to be able to survive and thrive in the new normal, we need to find innovative ways and means and utilize them smartly. To live and prosper in the new normal requires finding of economically viable ways of doing things and a whole set of innovative ideas, methods and technology.

The pandemic has also brought in the surface the advantages of great cultural resources of Asia. We must be able to properly appreciate the cultural values that we Asians inherit and promote them to the advantage of our people during this difficult time of COVID-19 and thereafter.

The founding objectives of the ACC were about to harnessing cultural resources for prosperity. Two years ago, when we founded the ACC, it was our aspiration to promoting interlinkages between peace and connectivity for the realization of sustainable development goals. Connecting ideas, people and economies was our ambition. This can very much provide the basis for harnessing of cultures for economic activities and generation of sustainable revenue from cultural assets and infrastructures that we have in the Asian region.

I am confident that the second meeting of the ACC would deliberate on those potentials and other innovative ways for reviving of economies in the aftermath of COVID pandemic.

Once again, I extend my best wishes for the great success of the meeting.

(Draft) Concept Paper for the 2nd Special Video Conference on the COVID-19 Pandemic

As of 9 April 2021

Background

On 25 May 2020, the members of the ICAPP Standing Committee participated in the 1st Special Video Conference on the COVID-19 Pandemic, which focused on "the Impact of the COVID-19 and the Role of Asian Political Parties." Representatives of 18 political parties from Cambodia, India, Indonesia, Iran, Korea, Lebanon, Malaysia, Nepal, Pakistan, Philippines, Russia, Thailand, Turkey and Vietnam participated in the video conference along with representatives from 2 observers, Permanent Conference of Political Parties in Latin America and Caribbean (COPPPAL) and Council of African Political Parties (CAPP).

During the conference, the participants emphasized the responsibility of policy makers in leading the effort against COVID-19 by designing comprehensive national health measures and facilitating regional and global cooperation. They underlined the importance of exchanging best practices and case studies of policy implementation to successfully contain the spread while strengthening the capacity of public health systems. Also, a common understanding was reached to utilize policy tools to minimize the negative economic and social impact from the pandemic.

At the conclusion of the conference, participants adopted the "Statement for the Special Video Conference on COVID-19 Pandemic (1)" through which they promised to continue collaborative efforts at the international level to combat the pandemic. The participants also acknowledged the need to hold additional conferences on the topic of COVID-19 until the situation globally returned to normal.

During the 34th Meeting of the ICAPP Standing Committee, which was held as an online conference on 25 November 2020, the participants suggested that the Secretariat organize the 2nd Special Video Conference on the COVID-19 Pandemic in March 2021, which marked one year since the global outbreak of the pandemic. However, due to the logistical difficulties of scheduling multiple ICAPP meetings in the first quarter, the conference was rescheduled to May 2021.

Developments since the 1st Special Video Conference on the COVID-19 Pandemic

Since the 1st Special Video Conference on the COVID-19 Pandemic, the number of confirmed COVID-19 cases has stayed at elevated levels according to the data published by the World Health Organization (WHO). Moreover, a recent WHO article suggests that despite of the development of COVID-19 vaccines, stopping the spread of the virus remains to be top priority, and that measures to reduce transmission, including social distancing, must be continued.[1]

The ongoing waves of COVID-19 infections continue to keep governments alert as they endeavor to make progress on the procurement and distribution of vaccines. Unfortunately, many countries have experienced a rise in cases as they reopen their economies after months of lockdown measures. As such, the pandemic is expected to have a lasting impact on both global health and the socio-economic conditions of populations across the world.

At the moment, there are concerns about an uneven global recovery due to stark gaps in the availability of COVID-19 vaccines across different countries and regions. Governments, the private sector, international organizations, NGOs and other relevant stakeholders will need to cooperate to ensure the procurement and equitable distribution of vaccines across populations regardless of their income levels.

Some groups of society such as women, the elderly, youth, and children, persons with disabilities, indigenous populations, refugees, migrants, and minorities are expected to experience a higher degree of socio-economic marginalization due to the COVID-19 pandemic. As such, there is a pressing need to include such marginalized and vulnerable populations in risk communication and community engagement during the crisis.[2]

Objectives

Given the previous discussions from the "1st Special Video Conference on the COVID-19 Pandemic, the Secretariat believes that it will be appropriate to organize a follow-up Special Conference in May 2021 with a focus on the following topics:

(1) Building an enhanced global emergency response system, including the effective procurement and equitable distribution of vaccines

- Securing humanitarian aid and recovery assistance, including access to newly developed vaccines, across different populations regardless of their income levels
- Collaborating with the private sector for more efficient emergency response, including testing, tracing and treatment
- Working with international organizations to expand emergency response mechanisms, to strengthen capacity of public health systems and to procure medical resources

(2) Achieving an inclusive global recovery and preparing for the post-COVID-19 era

- Caring for the vulnerable and marginalized groups of society
- Supporting small and medium enterprises during and after the economic downturn
- Developing and adapting to the evolving online work culture post- COVID-19

Program

The 2nd Special Video Conference on the COVID-19 Pandemic will be held as an online over Zoom in May 2021 due to travel constraints and social distancing rules as follows:

Participants

Members of the ICAPP and observers will be invited to participate in the discussions. Representatives of government agencies and international organizations as well as experts from the private sector may also be invited to share best practices, case studies and technical advice.

Observers from the Council of African Political Parties (CAPP), Permanent Conference of Political Parties in Latin America and Caribbean (COPPPAL), and the Asia Europe Political Forum (AEPF) will also be invited to speak during the conference.

Rules of Procedure

Given the time difference amongst participants and the remote setting, the ICAPP Secretariat inevitably needs to consider more time constraints than the in-person meetings. As such, the Secretariat has prepared rules of procedure for the conference as follows:

Time Limit per Participant

- There will be two keynote presentations by experts from international organizations – one each on the topics. Each keynote speaker will be allocated not more than ten (10) minutes.
- During the first, second and third sessions, representatives of political parties and observers will be allocated not more than three (3) minutes each for their remarks. After the time limit, the microphone will be muted automatically. A timer will be set on the screen to indicate how much time has elapsed.
- There will be no recess throughout the meeting.

Pre-Requisites for Participation

- In order to arrange orderly proceedings within the limited amount of time, all participants who would like to speak will be asked to notify the Secretariat in advance of the meeting by email at secretariat@theicapp.org.
- The list of speakers ("Speaker List"), which will be in the order of email requests received, will be circulated by the Secretariat in advance of the meeting.
- For each session, the number of speakers excluding the keynote speaker will not exceed fifteen (15) due to time constraints.
- The meeting will be conducted in English in accordance with Article 15 of the ICAPP Charter.

- Participants will be responsible for their own interpreters should they require such services. However, the same time limit will be applied to all participants regardless of their use of interpreter services. As such, simultaneous rather than consecutive interpretation is recommended.

Outputs

The ICAPP Secretariat will prepare a statement summarizing key outcomes of the conference. The draft will be circulated and adopted after consultations with the participants. In addition, the Secretariat will publish a final report that includes copies of the presentations and speeches delivered by the participants.

Appendix VII.

Statement by Hon. Jose de Venecia, Jr., Founder of the ICAPP and Co-Chairman of the ICAPP Standing Committee, and Hon. Cho Byung-jae, Secretary-General of the ICAPP, on 2 February 2021

We are greatly concerned by reports that the military authorities of Myanmar have detained multiple civilian government leaders, including State Counsellor Daw Aung San Suu Kyi, and civil society leaders. These developments represent an unfortunate retreat of democracy in Myanmar.

We urge the military authorities of Myanmar to release all government officials and civil society leaders and restore democracy and stability as soon as possible. Also, we hope that the tensions among all parties will be resolved through peaceful dialogue.

Myanmar has been an active member of the ICAPP. We sincerely hope the Standing Committee Members of the ICAPP from Myanmar, Hon. U Mahn Jonny representing National League for Democracy, and Hon. U Wunna Maung Lwin representing Union Solidarity and Development Party, will be able to continue their participation in the ICAPP activities.

We reaffirm our strong support to the people of Myanmar in their pursuit of democracy, peace, and the rule of law.
